

Ticking Away...

Albeit slowly, time is definitely running out

Without a doubt, we will all be glad when the last seed is sown; the last evangelistic meeting held; the last Bible study given; the last appeal made, and the last trump sounded.

Glance at the cities pictured to the right, and realize that at any given moment in these populous metropolises there are souls begging for the Lord to perform some type of miracle—healing of body, marriage, relationship. Pain floats across Heaven’s radar—constantly.

Soon the last cry will have gone up to the only One who can help us survive the last great conflict between good and evil. Part of the Christian’s job is to help the unknowing realize that there is still One on the throne of the universe looking for souls He can save. God doesn’t seem troubled by the circumstances that surround these souls; He only asks them to be patient and to trust Him.

Here we are, early in the year, watching some of these last moments trickle by. It wouldn’t trouble us a bit if we were running off our feet giving away millions of publications. If ever there was a time, this is THE time to be busy. With so many world changes on the horizon, how can we be still?

As we try to find ways to survive our own day-to-day crises, can’t we find a way to look beyond our troubled lives to a time when time will matter no more? Right now there are weary souls behind those doors that we can reach—maybe with a visit; perhaps quietly with a GOOD book. Do something.
