

A Harvest Approacheth But there's still time to sow seed

RECENTLY WE WERE APPROACHED BY A long-time friend, supporter and fellow worker who said, "I'm going to Israel for Yom Kippur and tabernacles; do you have something I can take with me?" "Absolutely!" was our response. We set him up with a supply of our brochure "The Hidden Jewish Prophecy of Iraq, Iran and America."

If you are reading an electronic version of this Communicator, click on the image to the far right and read, download or share the FREE Brochure with your neck of the world. Those of you with smartphones, scan this QR code and go straight to the page, download to your phone, then share the Brochure.

Those of us who travel have the opportunity to scatter seed on every soil we tread. It's not necessary to organize a grand distribution; just take some books with you wherever you go, and you'll find a field for evangelism down every highway and byway. Many of our friends and supporters have been doing this for years; they plan a vacation, and take our books along. A camping trip? Yep, there's room for some books. Business trip? They'll find room in the suitcase for a few leaves.

No degree is necessary in the field of evangelism, nor will one ever be needed. In the agricultural world it is recognized that anyone can sow seed. A power beyond the scope of our eyesight and intelligence is applied to the seed ... after it is placed in the ground. The same is true with seeds of the Spirit; our responsibility is to get the seed within reach of others, who then plant the seed in their own minds. The words of Paul echo here: "How shall they believe in Him of Whom they have not heard?" The job of telling has been freely given to us. In addition to the job, we've been given talents which can be used to get the job done. If you feel you have no talent whatsoever, at least get out and scatter seed. If you can't get out, sponsor someone who can; we get cards, letters and emails from people asking for help all the time

Help us help them.
